

Clearinghouse information

For those of you planning on playing college ball at the NCAA Div I or Div II levels, here are some links to the NCAA clearinghouse. I believe Div III and NAIA do not need to register for the clearinghouse, but i am not an expert.

It is recommended that kids sign-up early in their high school careers so that they can align themselves with the necessary classes to meet the NCAA Clearinghouse colleges' standards. Most sign-up late (jr./sr) year. There is a cost (I believe it is a $60 cost)...so signing up prematurely (before you know a student is D1 or D2 material) is not advantageous for the family or the athlete. However, the sooner these D1/D2 athletes are registered the sooner college coaches can start tracking/communicating with the athlete. Basically the Clearinghouse cross-references the courses you have taken (and the grades you have earned) with what specific colleges are looking for/ expecting in their student-athletes. If a college coach doesn't know you exist (even though you may be a better athlete and/or student) until your senior year...they may have given "your spot" on their team to someone else, because they knew about them/signed them sooner—because they didn't know "anyone better" existed. Hope this helps.

1. NCAA Clearinghouse. How To Register with The NCAA Eligibility Center.

What you need to know about the NCAA clearinghouse, (Now called the NCAA Eligibility Center), GPA, SAT and ACT. Your first step towards being recruited.

2. Register with the NCAA Clearinghouse

Information about the NCAA Clearinghouse, GPA. SAT and ACT. What you must do to get recruited.